Wednesday 30th August 2017

The Directors of Mane Consulting are delighted to announce the expansion of the business with the hire of Britt McGill as their Associate Director responsible for their Digital & Technology division.

Britt has 8 years of experience across the IT sourcing space, and has specialised in Digital over the last 5 of those. Britt is well known to the Directors of Mane Consulting having worked with Britt in her last role. Britt will be focused on sourcing and selecting Digital and Development talent for our clients across Australia.

Co-founder and Director of Mane Consulting, Ieuan Williams said “Britt offers something different to what we already have in our business. Britt’s experience and knowledge within Sydney’s digital space is second-to-none and we are thrilled she has decided to be part of our journey. Having worked with Britt previously we know that she fits within the values we are building Mane upon and we cannot wait to get started. Having Britt with us allows us to cement our reputation with our existing client base and will diversify our portfolio of clients through her specialism and in time, her network.

Britt deciding to join is a big moment for Mane Consulting. It signals our continued intent to focus on growing markets with real specialists leading the charge.”

The announcement of Britt joining Mane Consulting is the second specialist hire in recent months with Lisa Hurl joining to focus on Insurance in May 2017.
